ADVERTISEMENTS (continued).

The 150th Psalm, 'Praise ye the Lord,' an anthem for Soli and Chorus, composed for the opening of a new Organ in All Saints Church, Northampton, and respectfully dedicated to the Rev. W. Wales, M.A., Vicar, by CHARLES MCKORKELL.

"Mr. McKorkell's Anthem is the work of an able musician; it opens with a chorus, 'Praise ye the Lord,' in plain counterpoint, and of a majestic character. There is an exceedingly good quartett for solo voices, simple in construction, but pure and rich in harmony."—Morning Chronicle.

Cocks & Co.'s Musical Publications.

ORATORIO MUSIC, with Organ or Piano Accompaniments, elegantly engraved and printed on fine paper, folio size, newly arranged by John Bishop: i.e. Handel's Messiah (from Mozart's score), 15s.; Israel in Egypt, 15s.; Acis and Galatea, 12s.; the Coronation Anthems, 12s.; and his Dettingen Te Deum, 12s.; Haydn's Creation, 15s.; Tallis, the Order of the daily Service, in red and black type, 8vo., gilt edges, 6s.; Beethoven's Mount of Olives, by Warren, 12s.; Rossini's Stabat Mater, by Warren, 12s.; Haydn's Seasons, by Clementi, 21s.; and Kent's Anthems and Services, in two vols., 21s. each.

HAMILTON'S MODERN INSTRUCTIONS for the PIANOFORTE, fingered by Czerny, price 4s. "The veriest child might gain a knowledge of Pianoforte Playing, by studying Hamilton's book. The instructions are more like the oral communications of a person conversing with the learner, than like the essays that book-makers, who attempt works of this kind, generally give. In all, there are 50 Preludes and favourite Airs, 44 Exercises, and 12 Chants, fitted to the practice of a learner. The price is astonishingly low."—Vide Berwick Warder.

NEW ORGAN MUSIC by JOSEPH WARREN.—One Hundred Interludes, 4s.; Easy Instruction Book, 4s.; Appendix to ditto, 3s.; Hints to young Organists, 3s.; Hamilton's Catechism, a new edition, 3s.; Beauties for the Organ, 12 books, each 2s. 6d., or in 1 vol., 21s.; Sacred Voluntaries, 12 books, each 2s. 6d., or in 1 vol., 21s.; Church Voluntaries, 12 books, each 2s. 6d.; Parochial Chant Book, 115 chants, 3s.; 144 Cathedral Chants, 6 books, each 2s. 6d., or in 1 vol., 12s.; 144 Gregorian Chants, 6 books, each 2s. 6d., or in 1 vol., 12s.; 24 Psalms and Hymns, with Interludes, 6s.; Rules for Chanting the Morning and Evening Services, 8d.; the Order of Cathedral Service, 8d.

ORGAN MUSIC.—Handel's Twelve Grand Choruses for Pedal Organs, by John Bishop, 2s. 6d. each; J. S. Bach's Pedal Organ Music, vol. 1, 15s.; J. S. Bach's Forty-eight Preludes and Forty-eight Fugues, fingered by Czerny, 31s. 6d.; vols. 2 to 8 of his works, each 15s.; Rinck's Great School, edited by S. Wesley and John Bishop, 36s.; Viner's Organist's Library, 12s.; Warren's Sacred Voluntaries, 21s.; Warren's Beauties for the Organ, 21s.; Kent's Anthems and Services, newly arranged by Sturges, 2 vols.; 21s. each; Nightingale's Mass Voluntaries, 12 books, 7s. 6d. each; Nixon's Organ Themes, 6 books, each 7s. 6d.; Nixon's Select Subjects, 6 books, each 7s. 6d.; Nixon's Organist's Compendium, 24 books, 1s. 6d. each; and Twelve Organ Duets, each 2s. and 3s.

TO VIOLINISTS.—Orto, on the Structure and Preservation of the Violin, an enlarged edition, by J. Bishop, price 3s.; postage-free, 3s. 6d. Also, his edition of Spohr's Great School for the Violin, 31s. 6d.; ditto's Campagnoli's School for the Violin, 26s.; Dubourg on the Violin, 5s.; and the Catechism for Violin, by Hamilton, 1s.—London: R. Arrangements from the Full Scores of Handel, Beethoven, Mozart, Haydn, Graun, Schneider, &c., for the ORGAN. By WILLIAM T. BEST.

It is intended to include in this work several compositions which have not hitherto been arranged for the Organ; amongst many others may be mentioned, Beethoven's "Andante con moto," from the Symphony in C minor, the "Andante" from the Symphony in D; Handel's Choruses, "Wretched Lovers," "Let their celestial concerts," "I will sing unto the Lord," (The horse and his rider), "He trusted in God," &c. Several movements from the Stringed Quartetts of Beethoven and Mozart have been expressly arranged; it is therefore hoped that nothing will be wanting to render the volume acceptable to those who study the Instrument with the view of employing its vast resources in a characteristic and legitimate manner.

Subscribers' Names received by W. T. BEST, 23, West-derby-street, Liverpool, and at the London Sacred Music Warehouses, 69, Dean-street, Soho, & 24, Poultry.

Music and Education. By Dr. Mainzer.

Dedicated to the Members of the Educational Institute of Scotland.

"We have never read any work on music displaying a more elevated and philosophical view of the proper aims and objects of the art."—The Educational Times, London, May 1.

"An excellent and eloquent work, which deserves the most serious attention of every one engaged in education."—Classical Museum, April.

"We recommend the work as characterized not only by a profound knowledge of the theory and practice of music, but by a thoroughly rational, philosophical, and practical spirit. Dr. Mainzer, though a German, writes English with enviable eloquence and precision, while his pages teem with poetry and learning."—The Scotsman, March 22.

"In closing the volume we feel that, during its perusal, we have been drawn into the vortex of its amiable enthusiasm. We hope that, as a treatise introductory to family music, it will become a family book."—Chambers' Journal, April 29.

MAINZER'S VOCAL MANUAL, "Singing for the Million," for Classes and Private Instruction. 1s. 6d.

Ditto " " Second part, containing numerous Exercises in Mutations, Fugues, and Canons. 2s. 6d.

ADDRESSED TO THE MUSICAL PUBLIC.

"Tidings do I bring, and lucky joys,
And golden times, and happy news of price."
2nd Part, Henry IV.
"Make trivial price of serious things."
All's well that ends well.

*The Reasons which have determined
F. Alfred Novello to reduce the price of his Musical Publications; the majority of them to the full extent of 50 per cent.*

DURING the last twenty years there has been a progressive increase in the culture of music. In the earlier part of this period, classical works were published only with great sacrifice on the part of the printer, and the demand for such works was so limited, that the cost of engraving, printing, and payment to the Composer, was obliged to be divided amongst a small number of copies, and this small number took many years to sell.

Many works were thus placed within the reach of amateurs, which had been previously confined to the libraries of the few, and this facility tended much to increase the musical taste which it was intended to supply. Gradually classical music was produced in greater abundance, but still the cost was obliged to be divided on the probable sale of but very few copies.

It may not be amiss, by a few figures, more fully to explain the difficulty a publisher labours under when printing a book for which he can expect but few buyers; and in the second statement it will be seen how he can afford to sell the same book at a lower price, if he can calculate upon a larger sale.

We will suppose—

The cost of the copyright , or payment to the Author	10	10	0
The cost of plates, engraving, &c.	...	...	10 0 0
The cost of printing and paper for 200 copies	...	15	0 0
		£35	10 0

This expense divided amongst 200 purchasers, is 3s. 6d. each.

But suppose a larger number of purchasers—

The cost to the Author and for engraving, &c. , as before	...	...	20 10 0
The cost for printing and paper for 2000 copies, same rate as before	...	...	150 0 0
		£170	10 0

Expense divided amongst 2000 purchasers, is about 1s. 9d. each.

The advance made in the culture of classical music within the last few years of the period first mentioned, has so much multiplied the buyers of the better class of music, that it has induced the experiments which I have been making by the publication of Oratorios and Church Music at prices which could only repay the first outlay by the sale of numerous copies.

On a careful consideration of the altered state of musical taste, and the success of the late experiments, two questions of some moment have arisen, viz.: first, whether the majority of the works I print might not be reduced in price with advantage to the public and the advancement of musical taste, and still with safety to myself?—and secondly, how far such reduction would be just to those who have purchased these works at the prices hitherto charged?

The first question after mature consideration, I have thought should be decided in the affirmative, for although the reduction of the prices (in most instances full 50 per cent), will entail much the same risk as that incurred by the earlier editors of classical music, yet it may be hoped that the diminished cost, by the impetus it will give to the cultivation of music, will again have the effect of creating fresh buyers in addition to those which already exist.

The second question may be best answered by a consideration of the facts, that the music they have purchased could not have been published at a lower price during the limited demand occasioned by the then state of musical taste, and that they have been compensated by an earlier, a longer, and an exclusive enjoyment of it; he whose means and inclination enable him to indulge in green peas at a guinea the quart in January, does not complain because every one can obtain the same luxury for a shilling the peck in June.

I have thought it more just to make this large reduction at once, in anticipation, as it were, of the growing taste, than to make partial reductions, occurring several times; and the reduced price, marked in plain figures, is adjusted on an equitable scale.

I have thus fully stated my reasons for making so extensive a change in price, in the hope of satisfying any objections which might arise in the minds of such music-sellers and professors as do not take into consideration, that, by imparting to the Million the refinement of art, they are not only usefully and honorably employed, but are not so liable to be affected by fluctuations arising out of the caprices of fashion; but left the object of affording the public increased facilities should be impeded by those who think this new arrangement injurious to them, I think it right here to state that my publications are

Never out of Print,

and if one dealer will not supply them, another will; or the musical amateur will always find a supply by direct application to the London Sacred Music Warehouse, 69, Dean-street, Soho, and 24, Poultry.

January 1st, 1849.

Letter-Press Printing in every variety.

J. ALFRED NOVELLO would respectfully announce, that having a carefully-organized Printing Office, he is enabled to execute orders for every variety of Letter-Press Printing; and he trusts he may safely point to the various works published by himself, during the last three years, as favourable specimens in that department; all these—the Cheap Oratorios, and other movable music-type works, their covers, the large posting and other announcement bills, the “Musical Times,” his catalogues, &c., having been the produce of his own press.

The unusual attention given at his Office to Movable Music-types, and the beauty of the Music Founts, which belong exclusively to himself, secure to his patrons advantages in this particular branch which no other Printer can offer. His new Semi-Nonpareil Music-type is especially adapted for Thematic Catalogues or Indexes, from the boldness of its face and the smallness of the space it occupies.

Concert Announcements and Programmes are not only printed on the most reasonable terms, but J. A. N.’s establishment, as connected with music, offers particular facilities to concert givers. Specimens for Book-work, Color-printing, and the terms for every variety of Letter-press Printing, can be obtained at 69, Dean-street, Soho.

Third Edition, Price 2s. 6d.

A New National Air, with Pianoforte accompaniments, addressed to the Queen; also, A New Song, entitled “’Tis Christmas Time,” for One, Two, or Three Voices, with Pianoforte accompaniments. Price 2s., the Poetry and Music by H. MARLES.

OPINIONS OF THE PRESS.

“We have rather carefully examined this Song (Christmas Time), and are highly gratified to find that it cannot fail of being the means of considerably raising in public estimation the musical skill and genius of Mr. Marles. The words and music are peculiarly free from everything approaching to dulness, but partake rather of that strain of joviality calculated to produce a buoyancy of spirits. The New National Air is a piece of music of considerable merit.”—Devenport Telegraph.

“The music is characteristic, and exceedingly pleasing; it is, moreover, very ingeniously arranged. We cordially recommend it to our friends.”—Devenport Independent.

“The words of both pieces are creditable to the feelings and intellect, to the heart and head of the writer, and the music will not suffer by a comparison with much introduced into the world with the passport of distinguished names.”—West of England Conservative.

“‘Sway thy Sceptre’ has already reached a third edition. We predict an equally favourable reception for Mr. Marles’ more recent effort, ‘’Tis Christmas Time.’—The music is lively but graceful; the symphony is an admirable imitation of the merry Christmas peal, and the words are simple but appropriate.”—Woolmer’s Exeter and Plymouth Gazette.

Now ready, price 6s. 6d.

The principal Cathedral, with several modern Chants and two Glorias, arranged in Score, together with the Canticles in the Church Service, illustrated with a Chant, and marked with the divisions for chanting, by WILLIAM RIDLEY, Professor of Music, Bridge-street, Kingston.

The above work contains 84 Chants, some of which are from the best ancient and modern Composers; and will be sent free, on receipt of a post-office order for 6s. 6d. It may also be had of Z. T. Purday, 45, High Holborn.

“A handsomely got up and useful selection of Chants, which are selected from Handel, Purcell, Tallis, Boyce, Jackson, Nares, Crotch, Randall, Lord Mornington, Kent, Travers, and other eminent Composers. Among the modern ones we notice several pleasing compositions by the Author, marked by freshness and devotional feelings, &c. &c.”—From the Hereford Times, December 2nd.
